LOVE Island cad Jonny Mitchell ditched his fiancée just months before their wedding.

The Essex boy, 26, angered viewers of the show by stringing along Prince Harry's ex Camilla Thurlow before dumping her for Tyla Carr.

But The Sun on Sunday can reveal his engagement with Lauren Baxter ended as she excitedly planned their wedding last year.

A source said: "Jonny proposed in Bali and swept Lauren off her feet. But the relationship soured as it became increasingly obvious he no longer wanted to get married.

"They planned to wed in Santorini, Greece, and Lauren was busy booking her makeup artist for her big day when their relationship came to a sudden, brutal end.

"There is no love lost between them and she was not surprised with the cruel way he used and then discarded Camilla.

"She's secretly quite pleased he's shown himself to be the player she always suspected him to be."

Jonny left bomb disposal expert Camilla, 27, in tears as he snogged new girl Tyla, 24.

Clothing designer Lauren, 28, of Chelmsford, Essex, has this week 'liked' a string of social media posts attacking Jonny's antics.

They claim the business director has shown his "true colours" by "choosing an easy shag over a diamond". Others branded him "repulsive".

Lauren, who deleted a series of more aggressive tweets about her ex, favoured one that said: "Jonny keeps saying he wants a bubbly funny girl who's more like him when he's the most boring unfunny c*** I've ever seen."

She backed another message saying: "Jonny is literally demonstrating on national television what most boys do - have a wifey material girl and then sack her off for a 4/10 bimbo."

Celeb viewers, fans and even host Caroline Flack have all backed Camilla in the ITV2 show set on Majorca.

Caroline tweeted: "I've spent my whole morning thinking about Camilla... this isn't normal. She's just amazing."

Hot Fuzz actor Nick Frost wrote: "I can't stand seeing Camilla like this."

I'm A Celebrity winner Scarlett Moffatt posted: "Camilla's too good for him. Send in the prince of Spain or someone for her please!"

A heartbroken Camilla is now being romanced by new Islander Craig Lawson, 25. But his ex Sian Dillely has accused him of abandoning their son without warning to appear on the show.

Dumfries-born Camilla travels the globe for her job in Explosive Ordnance Disposal.

She represented Edinburgh at the finals of eco beauty pageant Miss Earth UK in 2008 and has played for Scotland in the World Lacrosse Championship.

Held... Mick's mugshot

Sir Mick: We were a target for cops

By ALEX DIAZ

SIR Mick Jagger says his notorious 1967 drug bust came because he was a "good target".

The Rolling Stones singer spent three nights in jail after amphetamines were found in his jacket in a police raid.

They were travel sickness pills, legal in Italy where they were bought, but he was still given a three-month prison term.

This was quashed after a landmark editorial column in The Times said his sentence was unfair.

Sir Mick, 73, said: "The Stones were good targets. We made good copy."

He said he and guitarist Keith Richards, also jailed then freed, had been seen as a threat to morality.

School's scarf row

A MUM is considering pulling her daughter from school after blasting its new uniform headscarf for Muslim girls.

Mariyan Raja said: "It is like something Darth Vader would wear. It is also too short for girls who have longer hair."

Mrs Raja, 36, who set up a 3,000-name petition, is considering removing Amina, 13, from Sir John Thursby Community College, Burnley.

The school is consulting with parents on the issue.

COURT SHORT

MARIA Sharapova holds the record for the loudest grunt, 105 decibels in 2009 - as loud as a revving motorbike.

Samurai yob jailed

A ROBBER who held up a terrified cabbie with a Samurai sword has been jailed for nine years.

Drug addict Vakhaar Ali, 25, pointed the weapon at his victim's neck. He robbed a second driver at knifepoint.

He also held scissors to an 18-year-old girl's face after demanding £160 to fund his drug habit.

Ali, of Cobridge, Staffs, admitted seven offences, including robbery and weapons charges. He was jailed for nine years at Stoke crown court.
