

Ramsay: Mum makes me boil

BY JAMES DESBOROUGH
FIERY celebrity chef Gordon Ramsay admits there is one thing that makes him quake in his own restaurant kitchen – a visit from his mum.

Ramsay, 50, says he always dreads it when mother Helen Cosgrove pops in to dine. He jokes that she winds him up so much over how her steak is cooked he wishes he'd taken the night off.

The telly star said: "You know what mums are like. They are difficult, cranky and they want to eat early."

"Every time she comes in she wants this steak seriously well done and I say, 'Mum, for God's sake. It is an Aberdeen Angus. The soles of my shoes taste better.'

"And she says, 'If you serve me anything less I'll walk in the kitchen and bring it back personally. So I say, 'Mum, go for dinner – just make sure I am off'."

Ramsay also says daughter Tilly, 16, is "really good" at cooking but can be a "bloody nightmare".

Shop stalker is locked up

A REPEAT sex offender has been jailed for a year after following a woman around a shop seven times.

Richard Pugh, 40, who has a history of sex crimes against women, insisted he was "looking at shelves".

But jurors at Caernarfon crown court convicted him of breaching a sexual harm prevention order in Wrexham, North Wales.

Red Arrows boat rescue

SEVEN people were saved when their boat started to sink as they watched a Red Arrows show from the sea.

The RNLI team picked up a distress call at 6pm on Thursday during the display at packed Fowey Harbour in Cornwall.

A spokesman said: "The vessel was about to sink and the seven people on board were taken to safety."

MUM'S PRIDE AS HER GIRL, 7, GIVES RAUNCHY DANCE

WINNERS Amber and Kem on show

EXCLUSIVE BY EMILY HALL

THESE shocking pictures show a raunchy dance routine performed at a beauty contest by a little girl aged just SEVEN.

The footage of little Beau Bailey's Love Island-themed display at a "teenie pageant" was shot by her proud mum.

And yesterday Anita Moss astonishingly insisted: "Other parents have criticised me for sexualising my child but I don't see what the big deal is."

"A paedophile will be attracted to children whether they're in pageants, swimming pools or wherever."

"I'm doing nothing wrong and anyone who says I am is just jealous."

Other youngsters at the "Southern Beauties" contest in Southampton copied routines from burlesque movies Moulin Rouge and Showgirls.

Last night children's charities urged parents not to put their children through such contests. Kidscape boss Lauren Seager-Smith said: "There should be no place for a competition like this."

OBSESSED

Incredibly, Beau's highly-inappropriate Love Island routine won the pageant, netting her a tiara as a prize.

The ITV2 post-watershed reality show regularly screened contestants having sex. This year's winners Amber Davies and Kem Cetinay romped 12 times.

And little Beau was an avid viewer, becoming Amber's No1 fan.

Anita defended her decision to let her daughter dress as Amber, saying: "She loves Love Island and she's absolutely obsessed with Amber."

Finance manager Anita, 32, from Southampton, went on: "It wasn't like I was making her sit there and watch it."

"Every morning before school she would get up and put on one of the recorded versions. She's been watching them over and over again."

"She loves Amber so she wanted to be her in her latest pageant."

For her routine, Beau wore a revealing bandage style bikini like one worn by Amber on the show.

The skimpy, midriff-baring one-piece was made specially for her performance. Beau also wore full face make-up, hair extensions and a spray tan.

The video begins with Beau posing "provocatively" on a sun lounger holding her iPhone. Next, a text message announcing her "task" is read out over a tannoy, just like in the show.

Beau pouts as the voiceover says: "Girls, it's time to drop it like it's hot in today's challenge, Battle Of The Booties."

The primary schoolgirl then throws down her phone and gyrates suggestively to a soundtrack of music mixed with audio of Amber and the other Love Island girls discussing which boys they fancy.

Other parents and contestants look on and cheer as she turns her back and shakes her bottom in a stripper-like dance move. Anita, who runs her own Southampton-based pageant company Teenie Pageants, tried to justify the routine saying: "Beau wants to be an actress so doing things like this is going to come in everyday life for her."

"I'm just preparing her for what she wants to do in life."

She added: "I worry about paedophiles anyway, not just because of the pageants. I protect her as much as I can. I'm her mother and I don't want any harm to come to her."

"But I'm not going to not put stuff up on social media because of a weirdo who wants to go online and has a problem. If we get that bad then what's the world coming to? It's just over-reacting."

Anita spends up to £3,000 a year on Beau's outfits. She explained: "Beau's competed in America four times so I know exactly what we're doing. She had a spray tan the night before then had to get up at 6am to wash it off."

"I do her make-up. She wore a wig which was styled the night before."

"We practised 24 hours a day for about three days. In the last year she has always come first, second or third."

"I try to do things that are going to work for her personality and be a bit controversial. I've been in this game a long time and you have to be a little bit out of the box for people to go 'wow'. A boring old Cinderella just doesn't work. They need that edge."

Anita admitted receiving criticism from other mums who say she is sexualising her daughter.

She said: "They don't bother me at all. Beau has a similar character to Amber. If that kind of personality is in someone, you just can't change it."

Beau was one of 40 youngsters who paid the £60 entry fee to take part in the Southern Beauties contest. Its boss Clare Hunter insisted entrants were encouraged to perform "age appropriate" acts. She said those who do not do so have points docked but are allowed to continue. She added: "I felt Beau's routine was great. She is the sassiest little girl and she did brilliantly to win."

Last night an NSPCC spokesman said: "We would always encourage parents to carefully consider what's appropriate for their child and the impact of placing them in a potentially sexualised setting."

DEFENCE David Davis battles EU to retain service deals

BY NIGEL NELSON
Political Editor

BRITAIN'S Brexit Secretary will this week fight to defend lucrative service packages after EU moves to scrap them.

David Davis will argue UK firms that sell products with maintenance deals, such as aero engine giant Rolls-Royce and lift makers, must be allowed to continue.

It is feared the EU will push to split products from service deals so the two cannot be sold together.

Services make up 40 per cent of EU trade.

In talks with the EU Mr Davis will also discuss data protection and how UK courts will work outside the control of the European Court of Justice.

He said: "We will be putting forward imaginative and creative solutions."

CANCELLED Nigel Farage show is axed after web petition

BY JOHN KELLY

AN appearance by Nigel Farage has been cancelled after a social media campaign against it.

The former UKIP leader was booked for 'An entertaining evening with Nigel Farage' at the Lancaster Grand Theatre in October, with tickets costing £23.

A petition set up by Jason Robinson on change.org to stop him gained 500 signatures.

It read: "His presence could truly bring a disturbance to our beloved city."

Yesterday the theatre confirmed the event had been cancelled, leading to anger from some who had ignored the petition.

Paula Clark wrote: "Start of a slippery slope where people object to a speaker and an event is cancelled. What happened to free speech?"
